ENVIRONMENT ANNUAL INDEX

Volume 24
January–December 1982

AGRICULTURE

*AGROFORESTRY: FARMING FRAGILE LANDS
Carol Polsgrove
Intensifying production while protecting the soil.
March 1982, p. 4

AGRICULTURE'S DIMINISHING DIVERSITY: INCREASING YIELDS AND VULNERABILITY
Walt Reichert
As wild species are extinguished, so are the means for improving agriculture.
November 1982, p. 6

BIOTECHNOLOGY

BOOM OR BUST IN THE BIOTECH INDUSTRY
Peter Behr
An examination of the commercial successes and failures of existing biotech companies.
July/August 1982, p. 6

STRIKING A BARGAIN BETWEEN COMPANY AND CAMPUS
E. E. David Jr.
An industry leader's views on how best to accommodate the cultural and procedural differences between academia and industry, particularly as they relate to genetic research.
July/August 1982, p. 42

PATENTING MODIFIED LIFE FORMS: THE CASE AGAINST
Jonathan King
Reasons why the biological realm should be excluded from the patent process and proprietary ownership and remain in the public trust.
July/August 1982, p. 38

SOCIAL RESPONSIBILITY IN AN AGE OF SYNTHETIC BIOLOGY
Sheldon Krimsky
Beyond biohazards, the other societal concerns about commercial and military applications of rDNA and which institutions should address them.
July/August 1982, p. 2

THE UNIVERSITY: MARKETING THEORIES, NOT TOOTHPASTE
Sheldon Krimsky
How genetic engineering industry has revitalized the debate over academic versus commercial research in American universities.
July/August 1982, p. 46

BIOSAFETY COMMITTEES: PROTECTION IN THE LAB AND COMMUNITY
Daniel F. Liberman
The formation and operation of MIT's Committee on Assessment of Biohazards.
July/August 1982, p. 14

PATENTING MODIFIED LIFE FORMS: THE CASE FOR
Charles E. Lipsey and Carol P. Einaudi
Discussion on why patents provide incentives for technological innovations and dissemination of information.
July/August 1982, p. 39

THE "SCIENTIFIC" SELLING OF RDNA
Stuart Newman
How the go-ahead to relax NIH guidelines was won despite the accumulation of problematical data.
July/August 1982, p. 21

RE-ENERGIZING THE RESEARCH UNIVERSITY
Gilbert S. Omenn
How genetic engineering is reactivating the partnership of academic and industrial sectors to the mutual benefit of both.
July/August 1982, p. 49

A MODEL ORDINANCE: PROTECTION AT THE LOCAL LEVEL
David Ozonoff
Description of a proposed model ordinance for state and local regulation of rDNA technology.
July/August 1982, p. 18

THE LEGISLATIVE AND LEGAL BACKGROUND
Donna H. Smith and Jonathan King
A review of the congressional and court action leading to the Supreme Court decision permitting patenting of modified life forms.
July/August 1982, p. 24

WERE GRANDMA'S TOMATOES REALLY BETTER?
Dale Stansbury
How the Plant Protection Act affects genetic vulnerability and food supply abundance.
July/August 1982, p. 27

THE STATUS OF HAZARDS AND CONTROLS
Susan Wright
The history and current status of federal oversight on rDNA research.
July/August 1982, p. 12

ECOLOGY/ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY

*ENVIRONMENTAL POLICY: A SUSTAINABLE SOCIETY
Lester R. Brown
Three threats to earlier civilizations are also ours, each requiring a different but immediate policy response.
January/February 1982, p. 2

*CONSERVATION: IOWA'S ECOLOGICAL INVENTORY
Mary Hutchison Tone
A project to identify ecologically significant areas and features for implementing land-use policies.
April 1982, p. 42

*CONSERVATION: SAVING TROPICAL FORESTS STILL AN UPHILL BATTLE
Bruce Rich
Recent actions by the U.S. government and UN agencies have made little progress in preserving these regions.
May 1982, p. 40

*ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY: THE EFFECT OF MILITARY PREPARATIONS
Arthur H. Westing
A summary of the dimensions of worldwide military expenditures and global environmental disruption and how they interact.
May 1982, p. 2

PUTTING SOCIETY ON A NEW PATH
Lester R. Brown and Pamela Shaw
How some countries have begun to develop strategies to deal with environmental stress, problems which also translate into economic stress.
September 1982, p. 29

*INTERNATIONAL: DUTCH EXPERTS DISAGREE ON PROPOSED POLDER
Jacqueline Cramer
The difficulty in separating subjective and objective elements in the use of ecological information.
October 1982, p. 4

ENERGY

Alternative Sources

THE ORIGINAL BLUEPRINT FOR A SOLAR AMERICA
Lamont Hempel
The 19th-century controversy between Thoreau and Etzler, a German immigrant who first advocated the potential of solar energy.
March 1982, p. 25

*ENERGY: PEAT AS A FUEL: A WORKABLE STRATEGY
Dennis A. Johnson
The pros and cons of harvesting peat while maintaining environmental integrity.
October 1982, p. 5

BIOGAS SYSTEMS IN INDIA: IS THE TECHNOLOGY APPROPRIATE?
Jonathan B. Tucker
An example of why technological innovations cannot be imposed without consideration of the social, economic, and political setting.
October 1982, p. 12

General

PROMISING PRIVATE INITIATIVES IN RESIDENTIAL CONSERVATION IN THE EIGHTIES
Richard D. Morgenstern and Robert Dubinsky
The ways in which energy management companies and utility conservation programs assist residential property owners in conserving energy.
January/February 1982, p. 6

*ENERGY: AN EDUCATION IN CONSERVATION
Robert Shibley
How conservation steps led to budget savings in a California school district.
April 1982, p. 39

*CANADA: IRRATIONAL ENERGY POLICIES
Robert C. Paehlke
The problems of both national and provincial governments in effectively handling the country's energy needs.
September 1982, p. 40

ENVIRONMENTALISM

IS UNEP STILL A GOOD INVESTMENT?
Penny Wakefield
An accounting of some of the achievements and shortcomings of the UN Environment Programme.
May 1982, p. 6

A DECADE OF ENVIRONMENTAL ACTION
Barbara Ward
The late historian's analysis of the events and attitudes that have developed since the Stockholm Conference of 1972.
May 1982, p. 4

ENVIRONMENTAL MEDIATION

THE MYTH, THE REALITY, AND THE FUTURE OF ENVIRONMENTAL MEDIATION
Gerald W. Cormick
A neutral third party brings together warring factions to develop and agree on a solution to their differences.
September 1982, p. 14

THE CREST DISPUTE
Verne Huser
How environmental mediation was used to unravel a dispute over resource protection and port development on the Columbia River.
September 1982, p. 18

ENVIRONMENTAL POLITICS

POLLS, POLLUTION, AND POLITICS
Richard P. Anthony
How the environment has fared as a public issue over the last decade and the likely political consequences of the public's sentiments in 1982.
May 1982, p. 14

*POLITICS: HOW EFFECTIVE WAS THE GREEN VOTE?
Richard P. Anthony
The new Congress will have more friends of environmentalism.
December 1982, p. 2

HAZARD MANAGEMENT

AIRBORNE LEAD: A CLEARCUT CASE OF DIFFERENTIAL PROTECTION
Dale R. Hattis, Robert Goble, and Nicholas Ashford
What the differing EPA and OSHA standards imply for worker and public health and the origins of these differences.
January/February 1982, p. 14

INDUSTRIAL SCREENING PROGRAMS FOR WORKERS
Mary P. Lavine
The issues raised by programs designed to identify classes of workers particularly susceptible to workplace hazards.
June 1982, p. 26

EQUITY ISSUES IN HAZARD MANAGEMENT: PUBLICS, WORKERS, AND PARATHION
Kirsten Johnson
A consideration of the case history of the use of one pesticide in which the issues of occupational risk and differential protection are cast in sharp relief.
November 1982, p. 28.

CLOSING THE PROTECTION GAP: SETTING HEALTH STANDARDS FOR NUCLEAR POWER WORKERS
Roger E. Kasperson and John Lundblad
A review of the feasibility and social desirability of the 1981 EPA proposal to lower occupational exposure standards and how it best should be accomplished.
December 1982, p. 12

HEALTH ISSUES

*INTERNATIONAL: THE SPANISH OIL EPIDEMIC
Mark J. Kurlansky
A tragic example of why government regulation of the agro-food industry and an aggressive consumer protection apparatus are needed.
April 1982, p. 4

*HEALTH: AERIAL SPRAYING OF HERBICIDES
Sheila Kaplan and Viveca Ekers
Citizen action in West Virginia leads to restrictions in the application of 2, 4–D.
June 1982, p. 42

*CONSUMER AFFAIRS: IRRADIATED FOODS
Ellen Berman
Testing continues in the use of irradiation as an alternative food preservative.
September 1982, p. 4

LEGISLATION AND REGULATION

PATENT TERM RESTORATION ACT: IT'S ABOUT TIME—OR IS IT?
C. Larry O'Rourke and Rick Bullit
How the bill now in Congress might stimulate research and development by those industries now burdened by regulatory delays or cause a decrease in innovation and an increase in consumer prices.
January/February 1982, p. 25

*LAW: EPA'S SECRET "SCIENCE COURTS"
Ross Sandler
The public policy implications of EPA's clandestine 1981 science courts dealing with the possible risks of formaldehyde and DEHP.
January/February 1982, p. 4

*LAW: BUDGET CUTBACKS AND ENVIRONMENTAL LEGISLATION
Charles S. Warren
The impacts of budget and staff cuts on EPA's ability to carry out its statutory mandate.
March 1982, p. 2

GROUNDWATER POLICY: A PATCHWORK OF PROTECTION
Amy Horne
How six incomplete and poorly implemented federal statutes and the lack of protection programs in most states imperil America's groundwater reserves.
April 1982, p. 6

*LAW: ENVIRONMENTAL STATUES UNDER ATTACK
Jacqueline M. Warren
A discussion of proposed amendments to SDWA and FIFRA.
April 1982, p. 2

*PUBLIC PARTICIPATION: CITIZENS CHALLENGE ASBESTOS PIPE USE
Carl Cahill
Criminal charges brought against citizens refusing to use city water contaminated by asbestos.
May 1982, p. 43

THE ENDANGERED SPECIES ACT: FACING EXTINCTION?
Faith Thompson Campbell
Vying interests during reauthorization hearings threatened to sap EPA's powers, but the bills passed by Congress kept the act intact.
June 1982, p. 6

*LAW: BARRING THE COURTROOM DOOR
Trent W. Orr
The ramifications of the Justice Department's challenge to the legal capacity of environmentalists to bring suit against federal actions.
December 1982, p. 4

NATURAL RESOURCES AND LAND USE

*NATURAL RESOURCES: FOREST FIRES AS MANAGEMENT TOOLS
Stephen Barlas
How national parks use fire to recreate natural settings, and foresters as a means of meeting timber production, wildlife protection, and watershed maintenance objectives.
January/February 1982, p. 5

*NATURAL RESOURCES: ARCH MINERAL'S LAND RECOVERY SYSTEM
James Krohe, Jr.
A technique for reclamation which promises to restore, and even increase, productivity of strip-mined farmland.
March 1982, p. 41

*ECOLOGY: GREENING UP AFTER MINING
Barbara McEwen
Using hybrid poplars for reclaiming strip-mined land.
April 1982, p. 40

CALIFORNIA'S PERIPHERAL CANAL: SKIRTING THE DELTA AND THE ISSUES
Timothy Pfaff
An overview of the history and controversy surrounding the proposed canal.
April 1982, p. 25

BUILDING FOR THE FUTURE: HOUSING IN AN ERA OF LIMITS
Bruce Stokes
How resource constraints reshape housing and living patterns around the world and call for new policies and initiatives.
April, p. 12

*NATURAL RESOURCES: STEWARDSHIP OF OUR PUBLIC LANDS
Senator Henry Jackson
A call to return to a bipartisan approach for managing and protecting the nation's natural resources.
June 1982, p. 2

*INTERNATIONAL: SAVING VIENNESE VINEYARDS
Mark J. Kurlansky
One organization's scheme to keep agricultural lands from developers.
June 1982, p. 5

URANIUM MINING ON INDIAN LANDS
Sandra Bregman
While income and employment levels of the Laguna tribe have risen with uranium development, related health and social problems and environmental degradation have increased as well.
September 1982, p. 6

THE PLIGHT OF THE PARKLANDS
Gundars Rudzitis and Jeffrey Schwartz
An examination of the environment vs. energy conflict.
October 1982, p. 6

*ENVIRONMENTAL PLANNING: ORLANDO'S AIRPORT OF THE TWENTY-FIRST CENTURY
Harvey Berman
A facility designed specifically to complement its environment.
November 1982, p. 5

REGULATING THE FEDERAL ROLE IN WETLANDS PROTECTION
Penny Wakefield
What is a wetland and who is in charge of managing the protection/development process?
December 1982, p. 6

POLLUTION

THE NEW POLLUTION: GROUNDWATER CONTAMINATION
David E. Burmaster
Toxic organic compounds threaten vital drinking water supplies to an extent which is only beginning to be discovered.
March 1982, p. 6

*INTERNATIONAL: WHO IS KILLING THE RHINE?
Mark J. Kurlansky
At least 200 toxic compounds have been found in the river, but Rhine-country governments have been slow to act on the problem.
September 1982, p. 41

*MARINE POLLUTION: MERCHANT FLEET DECLARES WAR ON POLLUTION
Thomas Land
The Greek shipping industry and environmentalists collaborate against oil spills.
October 1982, p. 41

SCIENCE AND SOCIETY

ENGINEERING IN AMERICA: SEEKING A NEW IDENTITY?
Victor Ferkiss
The profession faces an uncertain future, and there is ferment among those concerned with engineering education and its goals.
May 1982, p. 25

*HEALTH CARE DELIVERY: ARCHITECTURAL EXPRESSION OF A SOCIAL HIERARCHY
Steven Jonas and William Parker

The recently completed buildings of the Health Sciences Center of SUNY, Stony Brook, depict in concrete the social hierarchy of the American health-care delivery system.
May 1982, p. 42

*EDUCATION: SCIENCE, TECHNOLOGY, AND THE HUMANITIES
Michael S. Mahoney
Continuing education programs as the initial focus for teaching on the social implications of science and technology, and as the basis of a new humanities.
September 1982, p. 2

IMPROVING ENVIRONMENTAL MANAGEMENT THROUGH PUBLIC POLICY MODELS
David Strom
The implementation of a policy model of the endangered species program as an example of how institutional problems can be identified and overcome.
December 1982, p. 26

TRANSPORTATION

FORECASTING TRENDS IN AUTO SAFETY
Steven E. Plotkin
A review of the variables associated with vehicle size and safety and some attempts to extrapolate these to a future fleet of cars.
October 1982, p. 27

*TRANSPORTATION: END OF THE ROAD-BUILDING ERA
Bruce Stokes
The deteriorating road system in the U.S. calls for replacing the growth ethic with an ethic of renewal.
November 1982, p. 4

UNIONS AND THE ENVIRONMENT

ENVIRONMENTAL REGULATIONS: JOB-TAKER OR JOB-MAKER?
Richard Kazis and Richard L. Grossman
Contrary to early warnings, environmental regulations have been good for employment and for society.
November 1982, p. 12

WASTE MANAGEMENT

RECYCLING HAZARDOUS WASTE
Katherine Durso-Hughes and James Lewis
Discussion of management techniques of companies with successful waste-material recovery and reduction programs, and the governmental incentives encouraging such action.
March 1982, p. 14

THE WASTE OPTION
U.S. Environmental Protection Agency
Operations are underway to facilitate exchange of waste information and waste materials between generators and potential users.
March 1982, p. 15

OCEAN DUMPING POLICY
R. L. Swanson and M. Devine
The evidence for and against the ocean dumping of sewage sludge is examined by NOAA experts in marine pollution control.
June 1982, p. 14

*RECYCLING: CALIFORNIA'S BOTTLE BATTLE
Dave McNary
Pre-election pros and cons of the proposed nickel deposit.
October 1982, p. 2

*RESOURCE RECOVERY: THE 1982 SYNTHETIC FUELS CORPORATION AMENDMENT
Neil Seldman
In view of past failures, the proposed renewal of federal subsidies for urban waste-to-energy technologies should be scrutinized.
November 1982, p. 2.
